The project involves the concession of the Chincha Nueva and Nazca Nueva 220/60 kV substations through a self-financed PPP to ensure electricity supply in the cities of Chincha and Nazca, in Ica, and their surrounding areas. This will relieve the current overload on existing facilities due to the increasing energy demand.

The Chinchua Nueva substation will be located near the Panamericana Sur and will benefit Chinchua and nearby towns such as Pueblo Nuevo, El Carmen, and Pedregal. The Nazca Nueva substation will be built near the Ica-Marcona transmission line, benefiting Nazca, Palpa, Puquio, Cora Cora, and rural areas.
